Goff Hopeful of Surprising People at Brands

March 24, 2014 Chris Ashby 2014, BTCC, Donington Park, Jack Goff, Media Day, NGTC, RCIB Insurance, Team BMR, Vauxhall Insignia

Jack Goff has admitted he is not dwelling on the final race of the 2013 campaign and that 2014 is a new season, where everyone has upped their game to a different level.

The 23-year-old secured a scintillating podium finish in the series finale last year having gave Gordon Shedden a tough time as the Scotsman chased after a second successive title.

Now back for a second campaign with Team BMR, racing the Vauxhall Insignia under the RCIB Insurance Racing banner, Goff is keeping coy on how he thinks he will get on at the series opener in under a weeks time.

Goff said to BTCC Crazy: "Last year was a learning year and we are able to work from that and push forwards. We ended 2013 in a very good way with a podium however it is a new year now and we can't dwell on the past.

"Everyone has upped their game but hopefully we have upped our even more so it is a matter of piecing all the bits together and seeing how we get on.

"We have to be realistic and we aren't as big as some of the teams down the pitlane. We haven't done as much testing as others either however but we are in a better place than last year and I hope we can surprise a few people."

At the series season launch held at Donington Park last week, rain showers halted a lot of running however a run out a Brands the following day left the former Clio Cup champion confident the car and team are working in the right direction.

"The rain somewhat scuppered our day at the season launch. We completed two out laps so we decided to work towards the next test. We had a run out at Croft a couple of weeks ago and the car felt a lot better than it did last year," the Insignia driver added.

"If we keep working in the direction we are going then I think we will be there or thereabouts throughout the season."
